Give in Unity

A cookery book that costs £15 could provide five children in Afghanistan with enough textbooks for one term.

A toaster that costs £18 could provide a family in Haiti with enough tools and seeds to grow food for life.

An iron that costs £25 could train a child in Afghanistan to become a tailor.

An apple tree that costs £30 could set up a vegetable garden in Guatemala.

A kettle that costs £40 could provide a hand pump for a well in Sierra Leone, providing six people with clean water for life.

A honeymoon voucher that costs £50 could buy 2 bikes for Community Health Workers in Afghanistan.

A dinner set that costs £75 could provide 14 AIDS orphans in Malawi with nutritious porridge for one year – sometimes the only guaranteed food they receive.

A bread maker that costs £110 could provide families affected by HIV/AIDS in Zimbabwe with an irrigation kit and agricultural training so that they can grow the nutritious food that they desperately need to stay healthy.

A set of coffee table books that cost £125 could supply a whole class of students with all of their learning materials for one year in Ethiopia.

An electric lawnmower that costs £150 could buy 50 hoes to help a community start farming again in Rwanda.

A chocolate fountain that costs £200 could buy 3,200 cocoa tree seedlings for a poor farmer in Guatemala.
